

White Glove Field Trip Handbook

A five-phase system for making every field trip unforgettable.

Phase 1 — Before They Even Board

- Reach out to the teacher one week in advance. Confirm departure time, destination, number of students, and any special needs.
- Ask: is this a sport team? What grade? That determines your joke script.
- Prepare your boarding playlist. Kids hear it from the parking lot — that's intentional.

Phase 2 — The Arrival

- Show up 15 minutes early. Always.
- Roll out the red carpet at the bus door. Literally.
- Water bottles at every seat before they board.
- Greet them at the door. By name if you have a roster.

Phase 3 — The Ride

- Safety instructions, delivered with humor. They will actually listen.
- Printed dad jokes distributed by sport and age group.
- Music system active. Playlist matches the mood — pre-game energy, post-win celebration, or post-loss dignity.
- Offer to stop on the way back if it makes sense. Let them decide.

Phase 4 — The Drop-Off

- Deboarding song plays. Same song every time — they'll start to recognize it.
- Thank them. Mean it.
- If you find something left behind, you return it. That night.

Phase 5 — The Follow-Up

- Send a thank you note to the teacher that same evening.

- Reference a specific moment from the trip. They will remember that you noticed.
- That note gets shared. It always does.
